Healing Through Storytelling

Friday April 18
5-7pm
Brown School
Goldfarb Hall 132

Join us for an evening of intertribal Native American storytelling. Storytelling encompasses indigenous/traditional health and wellness and this event will be an educational and entertaining experience deeply rooted in tradition. The stories will teach folklore, philosophies and teachings that have been orally passed from one generation to another. Storytelling allows us to exchange knowledge, take a break, and be with one another.

Grandmother Coyote is a Seneca and Comanche elder and respected storyteller. She lives in Florissant Missouri.
